
Congressman Opposes Referendum A

Posted by dickeyd - 2008/03/19 16:24

Will Congressman Mark Udall's opposition of Referendum A work to his favor in the Senate race against former Congressman Bob Schaffer?

Opposition of Referendum A, which was called a "water grab", has been used by Democratic candidates to gain voters who value water conservation on the Western slope of Colorado. Do voters cast their ballot in favor of candidates based on their stance on water supply? Both Congressman Mark Udall and Bob Schaffer have made bad decisions regarding water. Although Professor John Redifer from Mesa State College believes that Referendum A will not hinder Schaffer's campaign, many voters in favor of conservation on the Western Slope may be highly affected by a future senator's position on water. How does a candidate's stance on water conservation affect your vote?

http://www.gjsentinel.com/news/content/news/stories/2008/03/08/030908_1B_Senate_race_water.html

=====