

Colorado project fends off ravages of pine-bark beetles

Contributed by DAVID FREY, NewWest.net
Tuesday, 16 March 2010
Last Updated Tuesday, 16 March 2010

Combating the spread of mountain pine beetles as they destroy trees across the West may be impossible to do on a large scale. But on a small scale? It may be feasible, and an experiment on the slopes of Smuggler Mountain above Aspen, Colo., could be the proof.

Read more...